PREFACE

This report presents statistics on the number of inhabitants of the State, its counties, and minor civil divisions (townships, etc.). In addition, separate figures are also presented for urban places, wards of cities of 5,000 or more, and other areas of the State. These data are based upon tabulations from the Seventeenth Decennial Census of the population of the United States, its Territories, and possessions conducted as of April 1, 1950. Provision for the Seventeenth Decennial Census was made in the act providing for the Fifteenth and subsequent decennial censuses which was approved on June 18, 1929.

The major portion of the information compiled from the Census of Population of 1950 will appear in Volume I, Number of Inhabitants, and in Volume II, Characteristics of the Population. This report is a preprint of Chapter 32 (New York) of Volume I, which is to present, in a single publication, statistics on the number of inhabitants for each State.

The materials presented here will also appear as Chapter A of Part 32 (New York) of Volume II. Volume II will comprise a series of separately published parts, one for each State and a summary for the United States. The use of separate parts makes the basic materials on characteristics of the population for a given State available to the public in a single publication. Within the part for a State, Chapter A will recapitulate the statistics on the number and distribution of the population within a State; Chapter B will present statistics on the general characteristics of the population of the various political subdivisions of the State, such as counties, incorporated places, and the like; and Chapter C will present data on the detailed characteristics of the population of the larger areas within the State, such as cities of 100,000 inhabitants or more and standard metropolitan areas.

The materials presented here were prepared under the supervision of Howard G. Brunsman, Chief, Population and Housing Division, and Dr. Henry S. Shryock, Jr., Assistant Chief for Population Statistics, by Dr. Henry D. Sheldon, Chief, Demographic Statistics Section, and Charles P. Brinkman, Chief, Population Distribution Unit; the compilation of the statistics was under the direction of Robert B. Voight, Assistant Chief for Operations. The collection of the information on which these statistics are based was under the supervision of Lowell T. Galt, Chief, Field Division. The geographic work, including the delineation of special types of urban territory and the preparation of maps, was under the supervision of Clarence E. Batschelet, Chief, Geography Division.

NEW YORK

Number of Inhabitants

The State.—New York was one of the Thirteen Original States. After New York dropped its claim to Vermont, the latter was admitted to the Union as a separate State in 1791. With the annexation of a small area from Massachusetts in 1853, New York assumed its present boundaries. Its population on April 1, 1950, according to the Seventeenth Decennial Census, was 14,830,192. The State has a land area of 47,944 square miles. In 1950 there was an average of 309.3 inhabitants per square mile as compared with an average of 281.2 in 1940. As in all previous censuses since that of 1810, New York was the most populous State. It was twenty-ninth in land area.

New York had a population of 340,120 in 1790 (table 1). In 1950, 160 years later, its population was more than 43 times as large. The population of the State increased by almost 7 million in the 110-year period ending in 1900. This gain was exceeded in the following 50 years when the population more than doubled, increasing from 7,268,894 to 14,830,192. The largest numerical increase in the history of the State occurred in the decade 1920 to 1930. The numerical increase of 1,351,050 between 1940 and 1950 represented a gain of 10.0 percent over the 13,479,142 persons enumerated in 1940.

Usual place of residence.—According to usual Census practice, which dates back to 1790, each person enumerated in the 1950 Census was counted as an inhabitant of his usual place of residence or usual place of abode, which is generally construed to mean the place where he lives and sleeps most of the time. This place is not necessarily the same as his legal residence, voting residence, or domicile, although, in the vast majority of cases, these different bases of classification would be identical.

In the application of this rule, persons were not always counted as residents of the places in which they happened to be found by the census enumerators. Persons in places where guests usually pay for quarters (hotels, etc.) were enumerated on the night of April 11, and those whose usual place of residence was elsewhere were allocated to their homes. Visitors found staying in private homes, however, were not ordinarily interviewed there. Information on persons away from their usual place of residence was obtained from other members of their families, landlords, etc. If an entire family was expected to be away during the whole period of the enumeration, information on it was obtained from neighbors. A matching process was used to eliminate duplicate reports for persons who reported for themselves while away and were also reported by their families at home.

Persons in the armed forces quartered on military installations were enumerated as residents of the States, counties, and minor civil divisions in which their installations were located. Members of their families were enumerated where they actually resided. In the 1950 Census, college students living away from home were considered residents of the communities in which they were residing while attending college, rather than as persons temporarily absent from their parental homes as was the practice in 1940. In 1950 the crews of vessels of the American Merchant Marine in harbors of the United States were counted as part of the population of the ports in which their vessels were berthed on April 1, 1950. In 1940 such persons were treated as part of the population of the port from which the vessel operated. Inmates of institutions, who ordinarily live there for long periods of time, were counted as inhabitants of the place in which the institution was located; whereas patients in general hospitals, who ordinarily have short stays, were counted at, or allocated to, their homes. All persons without a usual place of residence were counted where they were enumerated.

Urban and rural population.—The 1950 urban population of New York comprised 12,682,446 persons, or 85.5 percent of the population of the State (table 1). This population was living in the 230 urban places in the State and in other territory included in the urban-fringe areas of the Albany-Troy, Binghamton, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Rochester, Schenectady, Syracuse, and Utica Urbanized Areas and the New York part of the New York-Northeastern New Jersey Urbanized Area. Nine-tenths of the urban population was living in urbanized areas (table 2).

The rural population of New York comprised 2,147,746 persons, or 14.5 percent of the total population of the State (table 1). Of the rural population, 299,643 persons, or 14.0 percent, were living in the 144 incorporated places and 51 unincorporated places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants (table 2).

Urban definition.—Under the urban definition established for use in the 1950 Census, the urban population comprises all persons living in (a) places of 2,500 inhabitants or more incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns,¹ and villages; (b) the densely settled urban fringe, including both incorporated and unincorporated areas, around cities of 50,000 or more; and (c) unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more outside any urban fringe. The remaining population is classified as rural. According to the urban definition used in previous censuses, the urban population comprises all persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and areas (usually minor civil divisions) classified as urban under special rules relating to population size and density.

In both definitions, the most important component of the urban territory is the group of incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more. A definition of urban territory restricted to such places, however, would exclude a number of equally large and densely settled places, merely because they were not incorporated places. Under the old definition, an effort was made to avoid some of the more obvious omissions by the inclusion of the places urban under special rules. Even with these rules, however, many large and closely built-up places were excluded from the urban territory. To improve the situation in the 1950 Census, the Bureau of the Census set up, in advance of enumeration, boundaries for urban-fringe areas around cities of 50,000 or more and for unincorporated places outside urban fringes. All the population residing in urban-fringe areas and in unincorporated places of 2,500 or more is classified as urban according to the 1950 definition. (Of course, the incorporated places of 2,500 or more are urban in their own right.) Consequently, the special rules of the old definition are no longer necessary.

According to the new urban definition, the 1950 urban population of New York included the following components: (1) The 11,854,591 inhabitants of the 212 incorporated places of 2,500 or more; (2) the 94,447 inhabitants of the 18 specially delineated unincorporated places of 2,500 or more; and (3) 733,408 persons living in other territory in the urban-fringe areas of the Albany-Troy, Binghamton, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Rochester, Schenectady, Syracuse, and Utica Urbanized Areas and the New York part of the urban fringe of the New York-Northeastern New Jersey Urbanized Area. According to the old definition, New York had one place—Irondequoit town—classified as urban under special rule in 1940. The first element and the 34,417 persons living in Irondequoit town comprised the urban population under the old definition. Of the persons living in Irondequoit town, 29,692 were classified as urban according to the new definition because they were living in the urban fringe of the Rochester Urbanized Area. The remaining 4,725 persons were classified as living in rural territory. The net gain in the urban population of New York resulting from the change in definition therefore was 793,438.

Although the Bureau of the Census has employed other definitions in the course of its history, the statistics on the population by urban and rural residence for the years 1790 to 1940 are shown in accordance with the 1940 definition. The 1950 statistics are shown in accordance with both the new and old definitions.

Trends of urban and rural population.—Trends in the urban and rural population can be examined only on the basis of the old definition. On this basis, the urban population rose from 5,298,111 in 1900 to 11,889,008 in 1950 (table 1). The largest numerical increase in the urban population over the 50-year period occurred between 1920 and 1930, whereas the most rapid rate of growth took place between 1900 and 1910. The increase of 723,115 between 1940 and 1950 represented a gain of 6.5 percent over the 11,165,893 persons enumerated in urban territory in 1940. Of the 72 incorporated places of 10,000 inhabitants or more, 67 shared in the increase of urban population. The rates of change for these places ranged from a decline of 5.7 percent for Watervliet city to an increase of 72.5 percent for Long Beach city (table 4).

In all but the last decade of the period 1900 to 1950, New York City grew at a more rapid rate than the State as a whole. As a result, the proportion of the population of the State living in New York City increased from 47.3 percent in 1900 to 55.3 percent in 1940 and declined to 53.2 percent in 1950 (table 3). The proportion of the population of the State living in urban territory increased from 72.9 percent to 80.2 percent over the 50-year period.

Despite declines in the first two decades of the twentieth century, the rural population of New York increased from 1,970,783 in 1900 to 2,941,184 in 1950 (table 1). The increase of 627,935, or 27.1 percent, between 1940 and 1950 accounted for nearly two-thirds of the gain over the 50-year period. The proportion of the population of the State living in rural territory declined from 27.1 to 19.8 percent between 1900 and 1950. It had been as low as 16.4 percent in 1930.

Counties.—The 62 counties in New York ranged in size from Hamilton with a population of 4,105 to Kings with a population of 2,738,175 (table 5). Between 1940 and 1950, 59 of the counties increased in population as against 49 in the previous decade. One-fifth of the population gain for the entire State was concentrated in Nassau County, which led in both the amount and rate of increase between 1940 and 1950, with a gain of 266,017, or 65.4 percent. Nassau had also led in the rate of increase in the previous decade. The gain of 436,962 for the five counties constituting New York City (Bronx, Kings, New York, Queens, and Richmond) accounted for one-third of the population gain for the State. These five counties had accounted for almost three-fifths of the population gain for the State between 1930 and 1940.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which counties are divided, the Bureau of the Census applies the general term "minor civil divisions." The minor civil divisions in New York are the towns and all but one of the cities. The following counties also include Indian reservations as primary divisions: Cattaraugus, Chautauqua, Erie, Franklin, Genesee, Niagara, Onondaga, and Suffolk. Five counties, Bronx, Kings, New York, Queens, and Richmond, are included in New York City. Each of these counties is coextensive with one of the boroughs of that city. The incorporated villages and one city (Sherrill, in Oneida County) form subdivisions of the minor civil divisions in which they are located.

Table 6 shows statistics on the population of each county by minor civil divisions for the last three censuses. The population of Sherrill city, each village, and each unincorporated place is shown in italics under the population of the minor civil division in which it is located. When an incorporated or unincorporated place lies in two or more minor civil divisions, the population of the several parts is shown in table 6 in the appropriate counties and minor civil divisions, and each part is designated by "part." Figures on the total population of such places are given in table 7. Unincorporated places are designated by "uninc." Changes between the 1940 Census and the 1950 Census in the boundaries of the areas listed are shown in notes to table 6. For changes in boundaries prior to the 1940 Census, see reports of the Sixteenth Census (1940), Population, Vol. I, pp. 714-721, and reports of earlier censuses.

Incorporated and unincorporated places.—In 1950 New York had 611 places incorporated as cities or villages and 69 unincorporated places of 1,000 inhabitants or more. Of the 12,259,032 persons living in the incorporated places, 404,441 were living in the 399 places of fewer than 2,500 inhabitants. Of the 166,442 persons living in the unincorporated places, 71,995 were living in the 51 places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants. The incorporated places ranged in size from Dering Harbor village with a population of 4 to New York City, which had a population of 7,891,957, or more than one-half of the population of the State.

Political units recognized as incorporated places in the 1950 Census are those which are incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns, and villages, with the exception that towns are not recognized as incorporated places in the New England States, New York, and Wisconsin.

The Bureau of the Census has delineated boundaries for the thickly settled urban fringe around cities of 50,000 or more and has also delineated boundaries for unincorporated places of 1,000 or more which are densely settled population centers without corporate limits. Although there are unincorporated places within the urban fringe, it was not feasible to establish boundaries for such places and therefore they are not identified as separate places.

The count of urban places in the 1950 Census comprises all incorporated places of 2,500 or more regardless of location and unincorporated places of 2,500 or more which are located outside the urban-fringe areas. Incorporated places of less than 2,500 which lie in the urban fringe are not recognized as urban places.

Urbanized areas.—There were eight urbanized areas entirely within New York and one urbanized area—the New York-Northeastern New Jersey Urbanized Area—partly within the State. Of the 11,376,908 persons in the State living in urbanized areas, 9,597,328 were living in the 10 central cities and 1,779,580 in the urban-fringe areas. The urban-fringe areas included 1,102,103 persons in 116 incorporated places and 677,477 in unincorporated parts (tables 2 and 9).

The maps and the keys to the numbered boundary segments of the Albany-Troy, Binghamton, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Rochester, Schenectady, Syracuse, and Utica Urbanized Areas and the New York part of the New York-Northeastern New Jersey Urbanized Area appear in the following pages. For the map and the key to the numbered segments of the New Jersey part of the New York-

Northeastern New Jersey Urbanized Area, see the corresponding report for New Jersey.

Each urbanized area contains at least one city of 50,000 inhabitants or more in 1940 or according to a special census taken since 1940, and some urbanized areas contain two or more cities of 50,000. Each urbanized area also includes the surrounding closely settled incorporated places and unincorporated areas that meet the criteria listed in the section below on "Urban fringe." Thus, the territory of an urbanized area may be classified into incorporated parts and unincorporated parts. (See urbanized area maps.)

An urbanized area also may be divided into central city or cities and urban fringe as defined below.

Central cities.—Although an urbanized area may contain more than one city of 50,000 or more, not all cities of this size are necessarily central cities. The largest city of an area is always a central city. In addition, the second and third most populous cities in the area may qualify as central cities provided they have a population of at least one-third of that of the largest city in the area and a minimum of 25,000 inhabitants. The names of the individual urbanized areas indicate the central cities of the areas. One exception exists to these rules. The central cities of the New York-Northeastern New Jersey Urbanized Area are New York City, N. Y., Jersey City, N. J., and Newark, N. J.

Urban fringe.—The urban fringe includes that part of the urbanized area which is outside the central city or cities. The following types of areas are embraced if they are contiguous to the central city or cities or if they are contiguous to any area already included in the urban fringe:

1. Incorporated places with 2,500 inhabitants or more in 1940 or at a subsequent special census conducted prior to 1950.
2. Incorporated places with fewer than 2,500 inhabitants containing an area with a concentration of 100 dwelling units or more with a density in this concentration of 500 units or more per square mile. This density represents approximately 2,000 persons per square mile and normally is the minimum found associated with a closely spaced street pattern.
3. Unincorporated territory with at least 500 dwelling units per square mile.
4. Territory devoted to commercial, industrial, transportation, recreational, and other purposes functionally related to the central city.

Also included are outlying noncontiguous areas with the required dwelling unit density located within 1½ miles of the main contiguous urbanized part, measured along the shortest connecting highway, and other outlying areas within one-half mile of such noncontiguous areas which meet the minimum residential density rule.
